Discover the Shetland Islands

Shetland is a place of drama. "Nature", wrote one visitor, "appears in her wildest dress" in these, Britain's most northerly islands, and it is the wildness and grandeur of the Shetland landscapes and seascapes which inevitably become visitors' most enduring memory.

There are more than 100 islands here, each forged by the waves of the North Atlantic. Everywhere one goes, there are dramatic cliffs, perfect deserted beaches, huge vistas across awe-inspiring voes and inlets, the isles beloved Shetland Ponies and above, the cry of seabirds.

Shetland also has a packed event calendar which begins in January with Up Helly Aa, a fire festival honouring the isle's strong Viking heritage, Shetland Folk Festival in May, and Shetland Wool Week in September. Shetland truly is an unforgettable destination to visit.

Did you know?

- Shetland ponies are the smallest horse breed, but in relation to their size, they are also the strongest and can pull up to twice their own weight. On the island of Foula there are more ponies than people; they outnumber humans there 50 to 1!
- Shetland and Orkney were colonised by the Norse during the 8th and 9th centuries and belonged to Scandinavia until 1469, when Princess Margaret of Denmark married James III of Scotland. The islands were part of her dowry.

- Shetland is home to the highest density of otters in Europe. These shy animals are most active at dusk and dawn, so quietly looking for them along Shetland's shores is an enjoyable way to spend an evening.

'Must-see' places in Shetland

St Ninian's Isle

1 on the map

Beautiful St Ninian's Isle is joined to the Shetland mainland by a thin strip of sand called a tombolo, the largest in the United Kingdom. St Ninian's Isle has featured twice in the BBC's Shetland series. When standing in the middle of the tombolo; experiencing the waves lapping at either side of you is quite unique!

Sumburgh Head

2 on the map

Sumburgh Head is a 100m high cliff at the southern tip of Shetland. Tidal streams from east and west meet here, and the mixing of water provides food for seabirds and whales. The lighthouse at Sumburgh has recently been converted into a superb visitor's centre, and from May to July, the area is one of the best places to see puffins.

Jarlshof

3 on the map

Jarlshof is an archaeological site which was occupied for 4,000 years. The site is layered, with later generations of dwellers building with materials from previous houses. Neolithic pottery was found here, an Iron Age broch, and several Norse houses. On top of it all sits a medieval house.

Shetland Museum and Archives – A fascinating place on Lerwick's waterfront.

Mousa Broch – One of the best preserved Iron Age brochs.

Meal beach – A lovely sandy beach.

Scalloway Castle – A castle with a brutal history built in 1599.

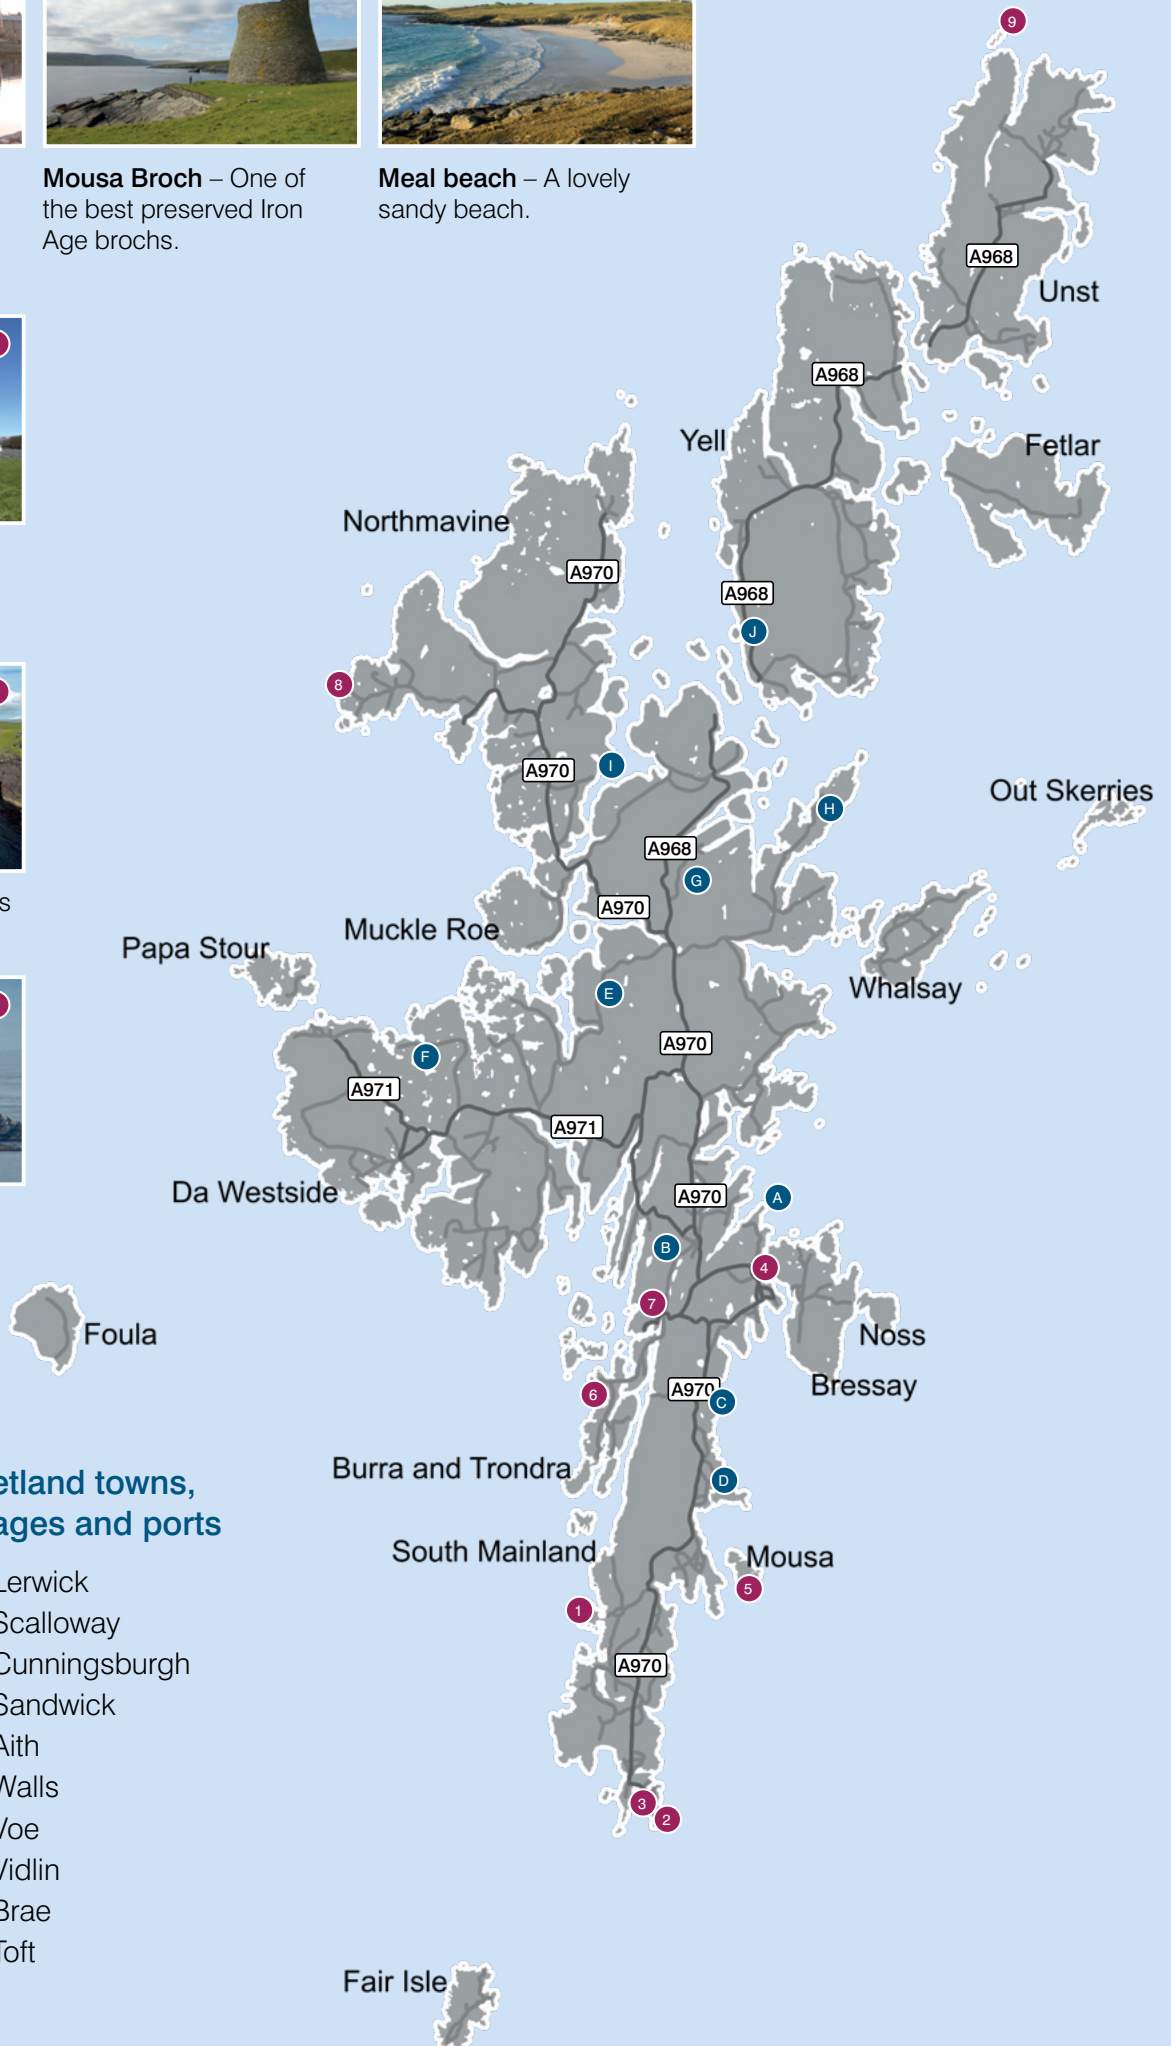

Eshaness – Dramatic cliffs and volcanic scenery.

Muckle Flugga – Britain's most northerly lighthouse.

Explore the Orkney Islands

With green rolling fields bordered by huge seascapes, Orkney has an incredible allure and huge range of attractions. Visitors can enjoy extraordinary remains of villages, stone circles and tombs and the sunken fleet at Scapa Flow – there is over 5,000 years of human history to uncover here.

Orkney's striking sea cliffs are home to thousands of birds, whilst seals, whales, and dolphins are frequently spotted in the clear waters surrounding the isles. There are tranquil beaches to stroll along and award-winning food and drink to sample. The abundance of entertainment and activities on offer includes festivals and shows, island-hopping, golf at midnight, traditional music, and shopping for crafts handmade in Orkney.

There is always something special going on in the Orkney Islands for you to discover.

Did you know?

- 15% of the world's grey seal population can be found in Orkney. Seals often haul out on quiet island beaches or may follow you in the water as you walk along the shore.
- At the end of World War 1, the surrendered ships of the German Fleet anchored in Scapa Flow were scuttled by Rear Admiral Ludwig von Reuter. Though many ships were salvaged, three battleships and four light cruisers remain in shallow water, and Orkney is a popular destination for divers.

'Must-see' places in Orkney

Skara Brae

1 on the map

Discovered under a sand dune after a windstorm in 1850, Skara Brae is a settlement of ten clustered houses which were occupied over 5,000 years ago. The stone-built furniture has been perfectly preserved in the sand; cupboards, beds and boxes are all intact. Skara Brae is one of the must-see attractions of Orkney, offering an amazing glimpse into Neolithic life.

The Italian Chapel

2 on the map

Built in 1943 by Italian prisoners of war (who were working at the time on The Churchill Barriers), the Italian chapel was built out of two Nissen huts, concrete, and scrap metal. The tabernacle was made from wood obtained from a wrecked ship and the light holders made out of corned beef tins. The interior was exquisitely painted by Domenico Chiocchetti.

The Ring of Brodgar

3 on the map

On a dark moor between the Loch of Harray and the Loch of Stenness, there is a vast circle of 36 standing stones. When the Ring of Brodgar was built 4,000 years ago there may have been over 60 stones. The reason why the Neolithic people erected this monument remains a mystery. Just as churches today are used for various events, it is possible that the stone circles served a number of roles.

Stromness – Picturesque port for MV Hamnavoe.

Standing Stones of Stenness – Four imposing standing stones.

Maeshowe – Large Neolithic tomb with Viking runes.

The Brough of Birsay – Walk to this island when the tide is low.

The Broch of Gurness – Iron Age circular stone tower and settlement.

St Magnus Cathedral – A Viking cathedral built in 1137.
